Metro unit future shaky in view of past

Funding for continued operation of the controversial Metro Intelligence Unit is expected to be considered cautiously and not without a number of questions concerning the future worth of the squad when the Texas Criminal Justice Council meets this week.

The unit's future will be viewed from the context of its past activities and success, all of which were evaluated recently in a CJC staff report.

CJC Chairman L. O'Brien Thompson told The News last week the council has evaluated each of the seven metro units in state metropolitan areas. He said he has not seen the final report on the success of the metro unit which serves Canyon, Randall County, Potter County, Amarillo and Deaf Smith County.

But Thompson, a resident of Amarillo, indicated he is well aware of the controversial past history of the metro unit, a history sprinkled with alleged shootings, and misappropriation of funds and more recently by the charge that the unit served as Amarillo's vice squad rather than as an intelligence unit.

Thompson said he asked the CJC staff to prepare reports on each of the units to determine their effectiveness in fighting organized crime. The CJC reviewed an overall report concerning the whole concept of the metro unit in state law enforcement at a meeting three weeks ago, Thompson said, but did not delve into the reports on the individual units.

He said the time had come to evaluate the units in light of the concept the CJC had of the squads when they were originally funded more than three years ago.

"When they were first started about three years ago, we thought they were a real significant approach," Thompson said. "We never intended them to take over the duties of the patrolman on the beat. That's not what they were funded for."

Some law enforcement officials have charged in recent months that the Amarillo area metro unit had become only an arm of the Amarillo Police Department, operating as its vice squad and detective unit.

"They are quite expensive, "Thompson said, "and when the rhubarb started here (in Amarillo) it was a concern to a lot of people."

Thompson said it has been indicated that the governmental bodies which support the Amarillo area unit with manpower are trying to re-route the unit into lines along which the unit should be traveling in terms of gathering intelligence material concerning organized crime.

He said the CJC staff evaluation report presents a favorable picture of the concept of the metro unit as an aid to law enforcement.

"Some areas are doing a durn good job," he said. "The concept of the metro intelligence units over the state looks good enough to continue funding those individual cases where it looks like they have a chance to do something."

Thompson said the past history of the Amarillo area unit is checkered by some unfortunate circumstances "and I regret that."

Some of the unfortunate circumstances include charges that the former head of the unit misappropriated federal funds, a countercharge that illegal wire-tapping was used to make some metro cases, and a shooting involving a unit member's personal life.

Thompson said he has not seen the evaluation report on the Amarillo area unit.

"I'm sure it will be looked at very carefully," he said. "If they have it in order and my guess is that with the experiences we've had in other parts of the state, it will be looked at favorably but with caution" in funding the unit for another year of operation.

Thompson said the staff will make a recommendation based on the past history of the unit, and funding will be partially contingent on that recommendation.

"I'm sure there'll be some questions asked," he said. "If they're not asked by someone else, I'll ask them myself. I will ask what assurance they have that things will be better in the future."

The CJC will meet downstate Friday to consider the application prepared by the Amarillo area unit for another year's funding. More than $80,000 has been requested for another year operation.

The Amarillo area unit recently underwent a change of direction after several meetings of those governmental bodies which are involved in funding the unit's manpower.

Thompson said there is still a need for units to fight organized crime in Texas through some sort of concept.

"I know people say we don't have any organized crime," he said. "But, the fact of the matter is that Texas is ripe for organized crime to move into the state because we're such naive people."

County closed meet to eye 'taxes'

Under heavy fire from an Amarillo television station over the county tax structure, Randall County commissioners will go behind closed doors Monday afternoon with their attorney to discuss "our tax problems."

Ostensibly, the commissioners will be discussing "contemplated litigation" with their attorney, Assistant Dist. Atty. Jim Blair, but it was not clear Friday whose litigation they will be contemplating.

Blair claims the county commissioners may have an executive session to meet with counsel because an Amarillo television station has threatened to sue the county over allegedly illegal tax valuations.

But, the television station claims it is not now contemplating litigation over the tax valuations and has not intimated it may contemplate such action.

County Judge Woody Pond, out of town Friday, told The News on Thursday the commissioners would be meeting with Blair in executive session at their Monday meeting. He said the session would concern "our tax problems."

The Amarillo television station has had at least two news reports recently concerning the tax valuations and tax figurings used by Randall County to assess taxes annually. The station specifically asserts the county is pursuing an illegal course in its tax valuations.

Blair has previously denied the county tax system is illegal and has said rather that the system is presumed legal until declared illegal by a court of law.

He said Friday the executive session for "contemplated litigation" is legal under the Texas Open Meetings Law because an Amarillo newsman employed by the television station has threatened to file a lawsuit against the county.

The newsman denies he has made such a threat.

Blair said the Cannon of Ethics for attornies prohibits him from talking in public session about litigation when the attorney-client relationship is involved.

When asked whether he would warn commissioners that they could discuss only possible litigation during their closed session, Blair said any matter having to do with that litigation — such as the potential illegality of the county tax system — could be discussed behind closed doors.

When asked if, based on that opinion, commissioners couldn't then discuss, behind closed doors, almost anything involving a decision to be made, Blair said the commissioners would have to be presumed to be acting in good faith.

The Amarillo TV station has claimed in its news stories that Randall County taxes are not assessed evenly and are therefore not legal.

Commissioners have discussed in open session recently the need to revalue property in the county to raise more revenue.

The Amarillo TV newsman told The News he has not in his broadcasts said the station will file suit, nor has the station urged anyone else to file suit.

The Texas Open Meetings Law requires that: "Private consultations between a governmental body and its attorney are not permitted except in those instances in which the body seeks the attorney's advice with respect to pending or contemplated litigation, settlement offers, and matters where the duty of a public body's counsel to his client, pursuant to the Code of Professional Responsibility of the State Bar of Texas, clearly conflicts with this Act."

Restraining order asked to halt closed meeting

Canyon News Editor Carroll Wilson will seek this weekend or early Monday a restraining order to prevent Randall County commissioners from holding an executive session Monday afternoon to discuss "our tax problems."

Wilson will seek to stop the executive session which County Judge Woody Pond and Assistant Dist. Atty. Jim Blair have said will be held Monday afternoon "to discuss our tax problems" and to discuss "contemplated litigation."

Wilson seeks the injunction as managing editor of The News and as an interested party.

He is represented by Canyon Attorney Jim Brown.

Brown said he will seek the restraining order signature from either District Judge Don Dean or District Judge E. E. "Gene" Jordan.

The agenda prepared for Monday's session indicates the commissioners will meet in executive session to discuss "contemplated litigation."

Wilson alleges in the order prepared by Brown that he was told Thursday by Pond that the executive session would be held "to discuss our tax problems."

He also alleges that he was later told by Blair that the executive session was necessitated by a threat of suit from Paul Roberts, newsman for KGNC-TV in Amarillo over the tax structure in the county.

Wilson contacted Roberts late last week and Roberts denied the

The "slow down" signs placed in streets near the Conner Park baseball diamonds here will be joined by curb markings this week or next to protect Canyon youngsters who congregate there for nightly games. Parking along a portion of 19th Street and 10th Avenue will be prohibited to alleviate a crowded situation.

Baseball area traffic due city solutions

A traffic bog-down which bears the potential for serious injuries to Canyon youths will be remedied at least partially next week when the city prohibits parking in areas around the Conner Park baseball fields.

City Manager George Loudder said city crews will begin this week or next painting the curbs along 19th Street and on 10th Avenue near the Babe Ruth and Pee Wee League diamonds at the west end of the Rex Reeves Elementary School playgrounds.

For years the area has been a problem area traffic-wise for the city due to the large concentration of parked vehicles on the two streets and the increased traffic along 19th and 10th.

While for the last couple of years, baseball officials have placed signs in the streets which urge motorists to slow down in the area, the traffic situation has only worsened.

Currently, cars may park on the east and west sides of 19th Street between 10th and 13th Avenues and on 10th Avenue up to 19th Street.

Loudder said officials two years ago tried to remedy the problem by closing off 19th Street altogether to traffic.

"That was unsatisfactory," he said. "People ignored them and they went ahead and parked inside. Unless a policeman was there constantly that would be an unsatisfactory solution."

Loudder said the city also contemplated closing off Creekmere, which deadends into 19th Street at the baseball diamonds, but decided the street carried too much traffic to enable the closing to be effected.

Each afternoon after 5 p.m., hundreds of cars jam along both sides of 10th Avenue and 19th Street as spectators begin pouring into the baseball diamond benches to watch games. The cars remain sometimes until late evening.

Loudder said the problem is the high number of pedestrians, particularly children, who cross and re-cross the busy 19th Street.

He said 19th Street becomes "awful narrow when you park cars on both sides."

The problem is enhanced by the character of 10th Avenue, which has become a major traffic artery for the city.

Loudder said curbs on the east side of 19th Street

Lolmaugh appeal due hearing; appeals becoming popular in area

Dist. Atty. George Dowlen will be in Austin Wednesday to argue another in an increasing number of criminal appeal cases making their way through Texas appellate courts.

Almost a year to the day after a jury found him guilty of murder with malice, the Court of Criminal Appeals will hear Wednesday oral arguments in the case of Marvin Lolmaugh, sentenced to 10 years in the penitentiary for the murder of his father-in-law.

A 181st Dist. Court jury found Lolmaugh guilty last June after spending a record length of time in the jury room deliberating a case which involved an incestuous father-daughter love affair.

Dowlen said Lolmaugh's appeal is only one of an ever-growing number of cases being appealed to higher courts due to a relaxation of laws and regulations.

Canyon attorney Harris Hampton will represent Lolmaugh in the Wednesday hearing.

Hampton said his client is appealing the case alleging that the introduction of a previous shooting credited to Lolmaugh was inadmissable and should not have been allowed in open court.

Lolmaugh admitted to the jury last year that he shot and killed his father-in-law because he believed the man and the man's daughter were involved in an incestuous relationship.

The father-in-law, Pinky Mullin, was killed on the parking lot of a South Amarillo restaurant.

During the trial here, the state introduced into evidence the fact that Lolmaugh had previously shot another man point-blank as the man sat with Lolmaugh's wife in a car north of Amarillo.

Hampton said the case could make history as the last case heard in Texas on the defense that the defendant was justified in shooting the father-in-law.

Hampton's basic defense centered around a now-defunct law which said a man could shoot another man if he caught the other man still in the company of his wife.

The last session of the Texas legislature struck the law from the books.

Dowlen said the Lolmaugh case is only one of six cases now pending or to be pending before the court of criminal appeals in Austin.

In addition, the district attorney expects a civil case involving an alleged dependent and neglected child to be taken to the court of civil appeals in Amarillo.

"This is the most cases on appeal we've had at any one time since I've been district attorney," Dowlen said.

Dowlen said the situation in Randall County is not unique.

"People are appealing more," he said. "The courts have made it so easy and so cheap for an indigent to appeal that virtually all are appealing even though they may feel it's a frivolous appeal."

Dowlen said most persons con-

Fuel ready for harvest

Randall County farmers will have plenty of fuel to harvest this spring, but they will apparently not have much harvesting to do.

Major fuel suppliers in Canyon reported last week they expect no problems in filling fuel orders for the harvest season. Their projections are based on what they expect to be a small harvest of wheat.

"We'll be alright this year because there's no wheat to compare with last year," Don Sheets of Consumer's Fuel and Elevator said. "We'll be lucky if we have 20 per cent of the volume of wheat we had last year. There'll be no problems at all with fuel."

Roscoe Richardson of Umbarger Farm Supply echoed Sheets' optimism.

"The wheat won't amount to

Inflation is key problem to college, WT veep says

While it may be generally believed that emphasis on college education has diminished in recent years, West Texas State University's new financial vice president sees no such erosion of interest by state government.

Hermas Miller, who began his first day on the job in Canyon last week as replacement for Virgil Henson, said Texas governmental officials show a continuing and abiding interest in maintaining quality institutions of higher learning.

Miller, who for 12 years worked on the Legislative Budget Board in the state capitol, has seen the working of the legislature and the executive branches of state government from the inside.

He brings to the university a detailed knowledge of the new budget system now operating for state agencies as well as knowledge of the funding system for Texas colleges.

Miller said during the 1950s and 1960s, legislators found they had to find funds for not only maintenance of quality education in colleges but also funds for expansion of facilities as record numbers of college students poured into institutions.

Now, he says, legislators have not forgotten their commitment to quality education, but are not hard-pressed for new facilities.

A recent example is the establishment of a special fund in the proposed Texas Constitution which would provide monies for Texas colleges other than the University of Texas and Texas A&M.

Miller, in his new role as university vice president, said he doesn't begrudge UT and A&M the money they receive through the Permanent University Fund.

"We also need funds so we can compete with them in providing the kinds of graduates we should provide in Texas," he said.

The special fund set up by delegates to the constitutional convention may not be the ultimate answer, though, Miller said, because the fund is not designed to provide for growth.

He said the fund is tied to the revenue produced by the Permanent University Fund.

Miller said the greatest problem to be faced by universities in the state is inflation.

The problem is compounded by the budgeting system required of colleges and universities in Texas.

Currently, college staffs must plan budgets three years in advance of the year the money will be appropriated.

In times of inflation, the system can be hazardous at best.

Miller said annual sessions might help solve some problems experienced in that kind of budgeting, but said that the mechanism currently exists to call special sessions for finances on an annual basis.

Miller said he favors the current system used to figure university appropriations. The system consists of a formula with the number of full-time student hours the basis for the figuring.

He said the Coordinating Board, Texas College and

H_2O center hope goes down drain

A hoped-for water resource research center at West Texas State University will apparently not materialize next year, President Lloyd I. Watkins said last week.

"It doesn't appear there'll be money available next year for active pursuit of water resource studies," he said.

The university had been seeking funds from the office of Gov. Dolph Briscoe for the research center to be located in West Texas. Several other Texas universities are reported to have such centers.

Watkins said the university is now preparing proposals which he "will very likely" submit as special funding requests in the university budget for 1975-77 to the legislature.

"If we can put together a reasonable proposal and the legislature will view it favorably, then we could" be funded for water research after the next academic year, Watkins said.

University officials are currently writing a budget appropriation proposal for the biennium to be funded for 1975-77.

"I do expect to see us involved in the water problems of this area," Watkins said.

He said the fact that funding will probably not be made available for the next academic year "doesn't diminish our intent and our commit-

Our World

Under Siege

By ANN BROWN

The foundation of American society is under siege. Schools, churches, and government are essential to any civilized society, but the family undergirds them all.

The home was earth's first institution. No organization is any stronger than the homes from which it comes.

With more than one third of American homes breaking up, and many of the remaining ones in shambles, is it surprising that chaos plagues our schools, churches, and government?

Two Columbia University social scientists hold polemical views on the future of our homes. Amitai Etzione sees America growing old and sick, and losing its zip and vigor. With the break-up of the family, Dr. Etzione says the schools will empty and the hospitals fill.

Margaret Mead says the discarding of outmoded family functions (having babies) will result in longer-lasting marriages with a more mature, better-informed population; and it will conserve our natural resources.

Etzione says we will run out of families before we run out of resources, and sees an aging society without enough young, healthy, productive people to take care of the old and ill. "Having children is the last existing mission of the family. Without it, families will disintegrate. It will strip the nation of its vigorous and creative social change."

Dr. Mead says, the fewer but better-born children will devote themselves to society as individuals rather than "feeling obligated to marry and have children."

"We'll have fewer 'parental' marriages," she says. "We won't be forcing everyone to get married and have children, which is the insane thing we have been doing for the past 25 years."

These two learned scientists seem to have missed something even the average illiterate knows: People are not made to get married or have children. They do it because they want to; it is the basic instinct of the human race.

The first thing the Creator ever said was not good was for man to live alone. Children who are not too inhibited to express themselves will readily admit their greatest desire is to grow up and have families.

About the only thing a little girl loves better than a baby brother or sister is a baby doll of her very own. Little boys may not play with dolls, but they surely love their teddy bears.

"Women," says Dr. Mead, "were once duty-bound to produce children to offset the high infant death rate. Now we have too many children and they are no longer bound in that way, so their freedom outside the home has been vastly increased.

"Of course," she added, "if the birthrate should fall to an alarming level — which is highly unlikely — there might always be a reaction and women could return to their old roles."

Is there a mother alive who ever produced a child to offset the high infant death rate? And how many women let the national birthrate determine the number of children they have?

It is true that numerous young couples say they plan to have no children. But the national birthrate had nothing to do with that decision.

This rebellious generation's emphasis on drink, drugs, and sex has frightened many potential parents out of planning a family.

These children know something, however, their parents did not seem to be aware of: Teenaged alcoholics usually find their supplies at home. And parents who scream over the price of milk and eggs, but keep a well-stocked liquor cabinet and buy cigarettes by the carton exhibit a hypocrisy that has turned their children against man and God.

The pendulum has swung wide, but love and marriage will never go out of style because they fill a basic need.

The siege may be long and painful, but the family will survive — not to meet national or social needs, but to meet the needs in every human heart.

New Frosh Due To Campus

One hundred and fifty beginning freshmen will visit the West Texas State University campus Friday for the first of five sessions of summer orientation and academic advisement.

Students and parents will meet for morning conferences beginning at 8:30 a.m. in the Activities Center. The sessions will outline registration procedures and regulations, student life, college costs and financial aids and academic skills and university resources.

Friday afternoon the freshmen will participate in academic advisement and pre-registration for the fall semester. The students will also be given a bus tour of the WTSU campus.

The summer sessions provide the beginning freshmen with a "chance to complete orientation, advisement and early registration in a relaxed atmosphere," says Dr. Kenneth Waugh, director of the Testing and Counseling Center.

During the afternoon parents will be given a bus tour of the campus, and will attend a reception hosted by the University administration, staff and faculty. Buses for the campus tours will be provided by the Amarillo and Canyon Chambers of Commerce.

Thursday the College Level Examination Program tests for advanced placement and college credit are scheduled for approximately 20 of the freshmen.

Throughout the summer, 750 beginning students and their parents are expected on campus for the five sessions. All students who have been admitted as beginning freshmen for the fall semester were invited to participate on a first-come, first-served basis, according to Dr. Waugh.

Other sessions are planned for June 21, July 2, July 5, and July 29.

Closed Meeting Is Not Justified

By CARROLL WILSON

Executive sessions by governmental bodies are unsettling things at best to news reporters.

Even when newsmen know or feel that an executive session has been called by a public body for discussion of something which is allowed under the Texas Open Meetings Law, they get jittery.

There is great temptation for governmental officials once they close the doors to the public to talk about any number of things which should be discussed in public.

After all, once the doors are closed who is to know what or whom they talk about?

To a large degree the reporter must trust public officials to understand the open meetings law and limit their closed door discussions to those subjects which may be discussed legally in executive sessions.

In general, I trust the Randall County commissioners to discuss only that which they may legally discuss behind closed doors when they call executive sessions.

But, I'm afraid that they have run afoul of the intent if not the letter of the open meetings law in their desire to go behind closed doors Monday afternoon.

County Judge Woody Pond says commissioners will discuss "our tax problems" when they meet in executive session Monday.

Assistant Dist. Atty. Jim Blair says he will meet with the commissioners to discuss "contemplated litigation" concerning tax matters.

In the background I smell a mouse. Here's the situation:

Randall County's tax structure — the way they figure how much you and I will pay in taxes each year — is a complicated system at best.

An Amarillo television station contends that the way commissioners figure those taxes is unconstitutional and illegal. They contend that the tax structure has been illegal for at least five years.

Blair has told The News repeatedly that the tax formulas used by the county are presumed to be legal under the law until a judge says they are not legal.

That's a convenient out for Blair, who has privately told commissioners for more than a year they should do something to straighten out the tax situation here.

He declines to discuss whether he believes a judge would find the tax formulas legal or illegal.

Nevertheless, the commissioners apparently pressured by public attention to their tax woes now face the untidy task of correcting the tax situation.

Their tendency is to want to correct the situation with as little publicity and hoop-lah as possible.

Attorney Blair claims that the Amarillo television station has threatened a civil suit over the tax situation and thus he says county commissioners may go behind closed doors to confer with him over the "contemplated litigation."

The Amarillo television station denies it has threatened such action.

The station's denial, made public in today's paper, indicates to me that commissioners need not go into executive session Monday — unless they plan and planned all along to discuss how to relieve themselves of their tax mess without publicity.

Blair, I'm sure, can contend that because it might be possible for the commissioners to be sued once it is generally known their tax structure is not all that it should be. Thus, he might contend, commissioners can still go behind closed doors to discuss how to correct the tax problem.

My contention would be that that argument could apply to almost any decision the commissioners make. It is a fact that anybody can sue anybody for anything at any time even if the suit is frivolous.

Conceivably, then, commissioners could go into executive session for discussion of entire agendas for fear some decision they might make would at some time somewhere lead to a lawsuit.

That is simply not in the spirit of the open meetings law.

It is my contention that just because commissioners fear they may be sued over the tax matters, unless they have concrete facts that somebody intends to sue them, they cannot go behind closed doors on Monday.

If commissioners through human error have allowed an illegal tax situation, they should take their medicine in public and tell the public how they will alleviate the problem.

There is still no substitute for an informed electorate.

WT Professor Honored Advisor For Fraternity

Robert Frank Heflin, assistant professor of history at West Texas State University, has been named outstanding chapter adviser for the period 1972-74 of Phi Delta Theta, an international social fraternity.

Heflin will be presented with a plaque at the fraternity's general convention at Miami Beach beginning June 16.

In recommending Heflin, chapter president John Stagner wrote: "Ever since Frank Heflin helped organize the campaign for Phi Kappa Delta's obtaining a Phi Delt charter, he has never stopped giving his utmost for the cause he believes in. His never ending desire and dedication to Phi Delta Theta and Texas Theta makes him an excellent candidate for the award."

Phi Delta Theta's chapter at West Texas is currently the largest of six fraternities on campus and is one of the five largest chapters in the general fraternity. It has been first in scholarship among fraternities at WTSU for 17 of the 22 semesters since being chartered. The chapter has been a Phi Delt Gold Star Winner, symbolic of outstanding excellence, the past two years.

Heflin has attended over 90 per cent of the chapter's weekly formal meetings as well as over 90 per cent of its weekly executive council meetings, not to mention numerous conferences with officers and attendance at various chapter rush, social and athletic functions.

He was born and raised in Danville, Alabama, and attended Franklin College in Indiana where he graduated in 1948 with a B.A. in history-journalism. His college work was interrupted from 1942 until 1946 by service in the U.S. Air Corps.

His post-graduate work was done at Vanderbilt where he was awarded an M.A. in history in 1956. He was admitted to candidacy for the Ph.D. by Vanderbilt with all work completed except his dissertation.

In addition to his teaching responsibility, Heflin and his wife Pat are members of the St. Stephen United Methodist Church in Amarillo where he is a member of the administrative board and teaches a Sunday School class.

Letters regarding the nomination were also received from Dr. James P. Cornette, chancellor of the university; T. Paige Carruth, vice-president for student affairs; and Duane F. Guy, head of the History Department.

Great Grandson For Family Here

Mr. and Mrs. Don S. Cloward received word this week of the birth of a great grandson at Rier Crest, Maryland who has been named Robert Johnson Francis and was born May 20.

The infant weighed 7 pounds, 5 ounces and measured 22 inches in length and was the first child for the former Billie Dawn Johnson and her husband, Robert G. Francis.

Grandparents of the infant are Mr. and Mrs. Wayne E. Jones of Fairbanks, Alaska and Mr. and Mrs. Robert Francis, Jr. of Rier Crest, Maryland.

The infant is the third great-grandson for Mr. and Mrs. Cloward of Canyon who also have one great-granddaughter.

Artistic Tapestry Focal In Sanctuary

A rather unusual artistic designed tapestry centered with a cross made of bronze and brass will be previewed at the dedication services of the First Presbyterian Church of Canyon this afternoon.

The open lattice worked tapestry measures 6 feet wide and a total length of 17 feet and was hung in the sanctuary Friday.

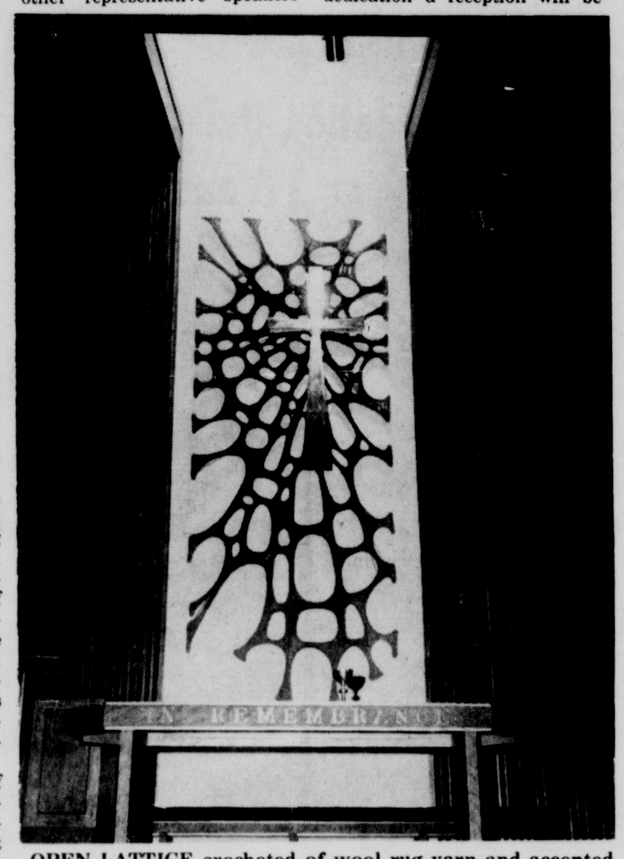
Four months in the making, the tapestry project was directed by a committee with Mrs. J.L. Upshaw serving as chairman. Mrs. Upshaw's husband and son, John, made the welded support frame for the hanging which was designed by Mrs. Royal Brantley with the cross being made by Darold Dean Smith. Preliminary plans for the hanging were made with the aid of Mrs. Vaughn Nelson. Other committee members assisting were Mrs. Sherwood Blasdel, Mrs. Royal Brantley, and Mary Frances Van Pelt with numerous other women of the church involved in the actual creative crochet.

The dossal hanging is made of shades of wool rug yarn complimentary to the cranberry upholstery of the sanctuary pews. It features an open lattice effect in a radial design which lends focus to the bronze and brass overlaid cross. A spotlight highlights the display.

First Presbyterian Church To Dedicate New Building

The new building of the First Presbyterian Church of Canyon will be dedicated in services this afternoon, Sunday, June 9, at 5 p.m. at the new church site with other representative speakers from the Palo Duro Union Presbytery assisting the local pastor, Rev. Baldwin J. Stribling.

Following the service of dedication a reception will be held in the new Fellowship Hall to honor guests and visiting friends. Preparation and refreshments for the reception are being made by the women of the First Presbyterian Church.



OPEN LATTICE crocheted of wool rug yarn and accented with an overlaid bronze and brass cross for interest is a modern artistic decoration for the new sanctuary of the First Presbyterian Church in Canyon which will have dedication ceremonies today at 5 p.m.

"A Common Venture of Faith" is the subject selected for the dedication sermon. The dedication will include presentation and acceptance of the keys for the new church which is located at 901 19th Street.

Participants in the dedication will be Rev. Charles F. Kriner, associate pastor of the First Presbyterian Church of Amarillo and chairman of the Small Church Ministry and Congregational Support Task Group of the Palo Duro Union Presbytery; Rev. James R. Carroll, pastor of the First Presbyterian Church of Amarillo and member of the coordinating council of Palo Duro Union Presbytery; Judge Mary Lou Robinson, ruling elder in Westminster Presbyterian Church of Amarillo and chairman of the Amarillo Presbyterian Community.

Other dedication service participants will include: Rev. Baldwin J. Stribling, pastor of the First Presbyterian Church of Canyon and member of the commission on Ministerial Care of Palo Duro Union Presbytery; Ruling Elder James T. Irwin, who is chairman of the Executive Building Committee of First Presbyterian Church of Canyon; Rev. Don Shepherd, past moderator of the Palo Duro Union Presbytery and pastor of St. Luke Presbyterian Church in Amarillo; and Ruling Elder David A. LaBrie is clerk of the session for the First Presbyterian Church of Canyon.

Historically the First Presbyterian Church of Canyon began with a charter membership of 16 at its establishment in March 1891 as the Cumberland Presbyterian Church of Canyon City, Texas. Eight county residents met at the old courthouse building with Rev. A.W. Rodgers and petitioned the Pease River Presbytery to take them under its wing and even before the Presbytery had granted the request eight other residents had affiliated with the local congregation.

Presbyterians participated with other Canyon congregations in union services until 1902 when the frame building at Eleventh Street and Fifth Avenue was erected to become the nucleus of church activities until completion of the second physical plant was located at 13th Street and 5th Avenue in 1926. The red brick building housed local Presbyterians for nearly half a century and the growth of the congregation from the original 16 to about 351 members in early 1974 has warranted the building of the new facility for First Presbyterian Church of Canyon.

The growth of the church is reflected in the size and number of organizations within the church from a first session numbering three it had increased to twelve by the middle of the 1960s. Likewise the Diaconate expanded from one (W.F. Heller) in 1891 to twelve today and the women's groups grew from a Ladies Auxiliary at the turn of the century to over a half dozen this year.

On June 16 the Ecumenical Service of Celebration and Thanksgiving will be held at 5 p.m. with representatives from other city churches involved in the service and on June 23 at 5 p.m. an organ recital and open house will be held at the new church. The church organ has been restored and moved to the new church site during the past several weeks. The pipe organ has been a part of church services at the Presbyterian Church since 1927.

According to defensive coach Gary Conner, the Canyon High School Eagles should have a good defensive team during the coming year. Conner said that he is impressed by the speed that was shown by those who will play defense. Conner said that the team will also have good depth for the coming season.

Conner recognizes three players who will be a strong part of the defensive team. They are Jimmy Ward, Lyndon Brazile and Kevin Raef.

Brazile will be coming off the junior varsity for the coming year. Brazile has quickness according to Conner. Brazile runs a 10 second flat hundred yard dash. Brazile will play safety for the Eagles. Brazile stands 5 feet 11 inches and weighs 150 pounds.

Raef will play strong safety for the Eagles. He stands 5 feet 11 inches and weighs in at 165 pounds. Conner feels that Raef will gain weight prior to the start of the coming season. Raef has that needed quickness to make the defensive secondary work well according to Conner. Raef ran track for the Eagles this past year and increased his speed. He now runs a 10.1 second hundred. He is capable of running a 4.6 40 yard dash according to Conner.

Little League baseball players are involved in a candy sale to raise funds for the support of the summer program. The top 15 boys will receive a new baseball glove for their work. For those boys who have not picked up their candy, remember to go by the Planned Parenthood office at the courthouse.

One small snag for the Little League program this year has been the need for dependable umpires. According to Dee Nix, league president, there has been a need for umpire clinics and coaches clinics prior to the start of season. It is hoped that next year these clinics can be started.

To whom it may concern, be careful about offering special rewards to Little Leaguers. One Pee Wee player who was offered X amount of money to hit a home-run became so disgusted with himself for not doing so that his trips to the plate were in vain.

Canyon American Legion team has won three and lost none this year. They will play Palo Duro today at Thompson Park No. 2 in Amarillo in the second of their zone games. Their first zone game was against Hereford. Canyon won 4-3.

This year's team is numerically stronger than last year. There are seventeen boys out for the team this year compared to only 11 or 12 who played last year.

Keith Keeling, who is assisting with the coaching for the American Legion, said that one reason there were more boys out this year is the good baseball season that Canyon High School had. Boys who play American Legion ball range in age from 15 years to 19.

Ken Williams, assistant baseball coach at the high school this past year, is also coaching the American Legion team.

It is good to see the team spirit in baseball on the rise after a few years of apathy. One was made to wonder if baseball will soon follow in the foot steps of hockey though. This past week, Texas and Cleveland tangled at Cleveland. Someone has said that Martin brought it on himself with his statement about the poor attendance that Cleveland usually has. Some say that it was the 10 cent beer night that was being observed during the fracus.

It cannot be blamed on the beer, though it might have added to the problems. Fans had brought firecrackers which they threw into the Ranger dugout and other hurlable objects that could be used during the fighting.

It is one thing to be an ardent fan of baseball or even one particular team. It is another thing to let revenge get the best of you.

television station plans or has threatened to bring civil action against the county in the tax issue.

Therefore, Wilson alleges, the reason for the executive session is nonexistent and commissioners should be restrained from meeting in executive session since the contemplated litigation about which they were to meet is not even contemplated.

The Amarillo television station has spent several minutes of recent news reports delving into the county tax formula system and alleges in air broadcasts that the system is illegal.

The restraining order is sought under Article 6252-17 of the Vernon's Texas Civil Statutes.

Watkins Will Be Student For Week

West Texas State University President Lloyd I. Watkins will spend a week this month as a student.

Watkins will participate in a week-long seminar during the week of June 16. The seminar is sponsored by the American Council On Education, an organization which includes most U.S. colleges and universities.

Watkins will be one of 40 college and university presidents to attend the sessions at Hot Springs, Ark.

Two months ago, WTSU professor Dr. Robert Winn submitted proposals for a water resource research center at the Canyon campus to Watkins for special funding through the governor's office.

The proposal called for establishment of a central coordinating research office with other staff members conducting research and preparing data on water resources in the Panhandle area, particularly.

At the time the water center request was submitted, Watkins pledged the university's interest in finding solutions to the water problems being experienced and anticipated by Panhandle agriculture and business leaders.

Another proposal — for establishment of a research base for the potential of cloud-seeding — was also turned down by a federal agency about two months ago. The university had proposed to become the focal point for the research in the lower part of the Southwestern U.S.

that much and there'll be no problem at all," he said.

County wheat farmers began cutting last week on early maturing fields.

The harvest is expected to continue throughout June.

County Agent John Brazzil said significant cutting doesn't usually begin on irrigated croplands until about June 20.

Irrigated wheat will be about the only wheat to make a crop this year, Brazzil said.

Very little dryland wheat will be harvested.

A severe drought plagued this spring's wheat crop and many acres of dryland wheat were abandoned. Others were grazed out and still others were struck hard by hail damage.

"They probably won't harvest enough dryland to reseed the acres they had planted," Brazzil said. "The harvest on wheat won't amount to much in Randall County this year."

Of the planted acres for the spring crops, by far the largest acreage is in dryland wheat.

victed of crime and sentenced to prison would rather spend some of that prison time in the Randall County jail rather than in the state penitentiary.

And many are released from jail on appeal bond and don't serve any time until their appeal is heard by the Austin court. In some cases, a convicted felon could remain out of jail or prison for as much as over a year.

"We have one prisoner in Randall County jail who's been in the jail since August," Dowlen said. "If he can stay in this jail another year while his case is on appeal, he will have served a great deal of his sentence before he gets to the pen."

University System uses the formula to figure proposed budgets for submission to the legislature which must then trim the figures to fit available finances.

"If the legislature could fund the formula at the rate prescribed by the coordinating board, it would be very good," Miller said.

WTSU would have to fight with other Texas institutions for appropriations before the legislature if the formula weren't used, he said, and larger institutions might be able to outnumber the WTSU contingent in the legislature.

between 10th Avenue and 13th Avenue will be painted to prohibit parking as will the curb on the south side of 10th Avenue near the 19th Street intersection.

"Hopefully that will remove the problem of kids running out from between cars," he said.

Loudder said it would not be feasible to close the streets only during baseball games because strict enforcement would have to be made concurrent with the closings.

Chief of Police Al Stewart reported that no persons have been injured in the immediate area of the baseball diamonds in automobile accidents in recent years, according to police records.

Brazzil said only about 30,000 acres of the wheat crop were irrigated. Total acres planted could reach as high as 150,000.

The dryland wheat crop was plagued almost from its planting by dry weather conditions and ornery bugs.

Planted in the wake of strong late summer showers, the wheat made fair progress until attacked by greenbugs in the fall.

No significant moisture fell in the county between August and May.

the open part of Monday's meeting, will include a discussion with Bob Davis of Columbian Securities Corporation on consideration of passage of an order for construction of the proposed South Amarillo courthouse annex.

They will also discuss updating their personnel policy, particularly one area which prohibits salary hikes for employees except at certain times of the year.

Commissioners have violated the policy numerous times this spring by granting raises to several employees.

City hopes high for bid prices

Inflation may be sky-rocketing on an almost weekly basis, but city commissioners hopes are just as high that bids for construction of a new city hall will be close to an anticipated $1.3 million.

Commissioners have projected the cost of construction of the new building will be just over the $1.3 million figure.

City Manager George Loudder said specifications and other paperwork for bidders will be sent out some time this week by the Dallas architectural firm of HD&R, architects for the municipal facility.

He said the city anticipates at least four contracting firms will bid on the job.

Bids are to be back in for opening at 2 p.m. July 10. Commissioners will meet in special session to open the bids and hopefully award a contract.

Loudder said commissioners are groping in at least the dusk on how much the bids will vary from the hoped-for $1.3 million figure.

"We can just go with it," he said, "on the basis that HD&R is an outstanding firm and has been good in the past on cost estimates."

Of course, Loudder is cautious.

"But, we live in an economic period now that is at best relatively unstable and at times extremely unstable and we'll find some variations," he said. "We feel we have the best available information and we have to proceed from that."

HD&R experts have predicted the rate of inflation through the bid date to come up with their anticipated construction figure.

"Obviously we think we'll be pretty close, but every day you read about somebody who estimated something at $1½ million and it came in for $3 million," Loudder said.

Contractors who receive specifications for the construction will be bidding to construct a masonry city hall which will include facilities for a fire station, police station, library and administrative offices.

Loudder said the specifications also include an underground small unit for central operations during storms or other emergencies, a centralized radio and control facility for police and fire units for use in such emergencies as tornado warnings.

The specifications for construction of a new community center to replace the current center — for many years the American Legion Hall in Canyon — will not be let out for bids, Loudder said.

Commissioners had discussed the possibility of obtaining bids for the project with an eye to construction of both buildings at the same time.

However, preliminary cost figures indicated the community center would cost in excess of $300,000 and would require financing for a longer period of time than commissioners desired to pursue.

Loudder said the community center may be included in the specifications only for a courtesy bid so commissioners can have some idea on how much the facility would cost.

Canyon voters overwhelmingly approved the construction of the city hall during balloting in a special election Tuesday. The vote was 744 for and 160 against construction.

Eastern Star Installs Chapter Slate

"All Things Are Possible If We Have Faith In God" was the motto selected by Doris Gillham as she was installed to serve as worthy matron for the Canyon Chapter of the Order of Eastern Star.

Mrs. Gillham was installed in her office Saturday evening at the Canyon Masonic Lodge Hall, 909 9th Avenue. She selected as her theme for the coming year "Faith and Prayer" and her scripture is "For we walk by Faith, Not By Sight" 2nd Corinthians 5:7. Her flowers are pink roses and carnations and she presented her incoming officers with pink corsages which she had made for the installation.

Her symbol "the praying hands" was presented in a poem entitled "Praying Hands" which was read by her granddaughter, Connie Hand. Mrs. Gillham's grandchildren sang the opening ode "The Beautiful Garden of Prayer" and her granddaughter, Becky Lynn Harry, presented Mrs. Gillham with her gavel, which had been used by Miss Harry during her service as a worthy advisor in Rainbow Girls in Brownwood.

About 25 special guests were present for the installation rites which were conducted by Grand Officers including: Cortez Dowlen, Grand Organist for the Texas Order of the Eastern Star; as installing officer; Alleene Leake, assistant installing officer; Osce Parsons, installing grand marshall; Ruth Hill, installing grand secretary; Jim Cabe, installing grand chaplain; installing organist, Moira Myrl Wheelock.

Installed to serve with Mrs. Gillham were Jack Parsons, worthy patron and other elected officers including Jan Word, associate matron; Reeves Donnell, associate patron; Alma Perkins, secretary; Bettie Davis, treasurer; Marie Manley, conductress; and Cindy Gruner, associate conductress.

Appointed officers installed were Betty Drake, chaplain; Anna Wright, marshall; Cortez Dowlen, organist; Ida May Rogers, Adah; Kathleen Glazener, Ruth; Georgine Tirey, Esther; Doris Hughes, Martha; Betty Nash, Electa; Glenn Hughes, Warder; and Winnie Donnell, Sentinel.

The retiring worthy matron, Anna Wright, and retiring worthy patron, Billy Mayfield, were presented with jewels of their office for their service during the past year.

The Bible, Square and Compasses were placed on the altar by Marcus Ann Vermeire and Renee' Vermeire, granddaughters of Mrs. Gillham. The new worthy matron's granddaughters, Connie Hand and Marcus Ann Vermeire, registered guests at the open installation. Her three grandsons, Jim Hand, Forrest Harry and Andy Hand, ushered at the occasion.

Candlelight glow from pink tapers in wrought iron candelabrum with greenery accents framed the setting for the installation. Candles were lit by Jim Hand and Forrest Harry, grandsons of Mrs. Gillham. Throughout the installation rooms were bouquets of pink flowers.

A reception where pink punch and individual cakes were served had Osce Parsons, a sister, and Mrs. Gillham's daughters, Nelda Jo Hand, Mona Beth Harry and Traverne Vermeire as hostesses.

Blood Drive For Canyon

A blood drive will be sponsored in Canyon Thursday June 13 from 2 p.m. until 4 p.m. at 306 17th Street by the Coffee Memorial Blood Center of Amarillo.

All citizens of Canyon are invited to participate in the drive according to John Mitchell, community relations director for the blood center. For those participating, a free blood insurance policy will be given each donor. This will assure the donor of free blood any where in the country within the next year. This policy will also cover all members of the immediate family.

All citizens between the ages of 18 and 65 are invited to give.

Mitchell, who has been with the center for one and one half years said that the center served all the major hospitals of the Texas Panhandle. He said that they are going to area cities carrying out these drives so that blood will be available to the local hospitals.

Mitchell stated, "We are trying to establish the sense of a community project or service in the giving of blood. All able or healthy citizens should participate. Only the concern of the citizens will make this drive effective."

No longer will blood be paid for by the receiving centers according to Mitchell. Mitchell said that on a national average only three per cent of the population gives blood. Mitchell pointed out that every five seconds someone somewhere needs a blood transfusion.

Former Farm Boy Serves With ASCS Office Here

By LORENA MILLER

Randy Whitson serves as program assistant with the Agriculture Stabilization and Conservation Service in the Canyon offices, a position he has held here since last July.

Whitson was formerly with the ASCS offices serving Lamb County out of Littlefield. He began work there in 1958 and served until he and his family moved to Canyon last summer.

Raised on a farm in parts of Oklahoma and East Texas, near Bonham, Whitson earned his high school diploma at Abernathy in 1953. Later that year he was employed with the County Line Gin, north of Shallowater, where he was injured seriously in a cotton gin accident and medical doctors were required to amputate his right arm.

"I had always written with my left hand, even though I threw a ball and batted with my right," said Whitson. "It took a while but I soon learned to do it all with one."

Three years after his accident, Randy married the former Nellie Barnes of Anton in 1956 and the couple has two children, Karen, 14, who will be a ninth grade student this fall, and Larry, 13, who will be in the eighth grade at Canyon Junior High School here. His wife, Nellie, is employed as secretary with Fassauer Industries in Canyon.

The Whitson family resides at 2604 11th Avenue in Canyon where he oftentimes spends a portion of his time in his workshop with woodworking projects. "I had never studied woodworking but my father was good in carpenter work and I spent my time when out of school and during the summer helping him at the shop — and found that I liked to do creative projects."

Over the years, Randy has built desks for his children, whatnot shelves for his wife, jewelry boxes for family and friends and has "just about made what I wanted when I got the notion" he said.

His only study at woodworking came while at Abernathy High School where he took a semester of homemaking and was involved in making carved boxes, billfolds, doing some upholstery and even cooking dinner for the teachers and staff.

Along with his own personal hobbies, Whitson has been a very active community person for many years while in Littlefield. In 1959 he started coaching for the Little League there and then progressed to the Pony League where he coached for seven years before returning to the Little League as a coach when his own son reached eligible age. He was also involved in scouting as a scoutmaster for a troop prior to his own son becoming eligible for participation and continued with the troop for 1½ years while his son, Larry, was in scouting. He was also on the Volunteer Fire Department for six years' service there.

"But Larry is more interested in the sports angle now," said Whitson. Their daughter, Karen, was interested in girl scouting studies and Mrs. Whitson was a scout leader for 2-3 years also.

At present the family plans to spend a week end at a cabin near Cowles, N.M., which is located in the mountains near Glorieta. Whitson said there were several silver mines in the area and he hopes to locate some ore with a metal detector while there. He has for years been interested in coin collecting "dabbling a little in a lot of different coins."

Although located near a mountain stream when at the cabin, Whitson says he doesn't plan to fish the stream much because he "prefers other types of fishing for recreation and often goes to area lakes to make a catch."

Randy Whitson has recovered well from the loss of a limb and says that he "learned quickly to tie his shoes single handedly — and also doesn't have any trouble keeping the kids in line with an occasional spank."

For many years he has taken care of the family lawn with ease but this year "son is big enough now and will be a lot of help," he concluded.

RANDY WHITSON is shown at his desk in the Agriculture Stabilization and Conservation Service offices in Canyon where he spends much time working with aerial maps relating to farmland conservation in Randall County. Whitson has served as program assistant here since last July and was formerly with ASCS work in Lamb County.

Drivers Education Being Taught During Summer

"It is the only way people under 18 years of age can get their license," states W.V. McAlpin, assistant principal at Canyon High School and instructor in the drivers education program here.

McAlpin stated that the drivers education program this summer will put 280 new drivers on the road. Students began prior to the end of school with classes being held before and after school. Eight hours of class work time was accumulated prior to the end of school on May 31.

Following the eight hours of classroom work, the student was eligible to get a restrictive license. The license was granted following a passing score on the restrictive test.

McAlpin said that students will spend a total of 24 days in the multi-media trailer rented by the local school district from PESO. Twelve days will be spent on the driving range furnished by WTSU and 10 days will be spent in driving on the streets of Canyon.

In all, students will have six hours of driving range time and three hours of street time. They will also have 32 hours of classroom time. These are required by state law.

According to McAlpin, the program is a concurrent program. Students are able to receive classroom training and at the same time, training behind the wheel of the car on the driving range. Canyon, according to McAlpin, is probably the only school in the Panhandle area that has the facilities to run a concurrent program. All other schools must give all classroom instruction prior to the students driving.

Cars used in the program are furnished by Stevenson Motors, Jess Stout Ford and Imperial Chevrolet. Six of the cars are used on the driving range and four are used on the street. The cars are equipped with a duel braking system.

Cars on the range are equipped with a radio system that allows two students to be in the car and the instructor giving instructions from a tower overlooking the driving range. According to McAlpin, this gives the student more confidence in his ability to drive.

Films are shown in the media trailer that instruct the student in driving technics, first aid, Texas laws, driving maneuvers and the major factors affecting the driver. During the film, questions are asked and the students press button A, B, C or D to record their answer on the media trailer computer. At the end of the film, the correct answers are given and the student knows his or her score on the test.

McAlpin said that the program was successful. He stated that since he had been in Canyon, he knew of no student involved in a fatal accident who had taken drivers education.

Those teaching in the drivers education program are McAlpin, Lewis Tversky, B.B. Kendrick, Ricky Mantooth, Ron Mills and Teresa Buck.

There are two sessions of drivers education here according to McAlpin. The first session runs from June 4 until June 28. The second session begins July 3 and ends July 31.

Any student 15 years of age or older may participate in the program. Students will have to be 16 years of age before receiving their license. Until they reach 16, they will be given a learners permit.
